

Utah County CHADD ADHD Support Group

For parents and educators of children with ADHD, and/or adults with ADHD

Upcoming Speakers & Topics

THURS. MAY 10, 2019

Cognitive Processes: Testing and Tutoring

Presented by:

Frances Thompson, PhD

Dr. Frances Thompson is a licensed clinical psychologist with extensive training and experience working with children presenting with an array of emotional, developmental, social, and educational challenges. Dr. Thompson's expertise lies in performing pediatric neuropsychological evaluations that assess for ADHD, personality abnormalities, learning disabilities, and other childhood developmental disorders. Dr. Thompson is also a certified youth trauma clinician and an expert in PCIT (Parent-Child Interactive Therapy). She is a favorite amongst local family law attorneys who seek down-to-earth, expert-level testimony in Utah's District Courts regarding a wide range of areas pertaining to pediatric clinical psychology.

Dr. Thompson received both her Doctor of Psychology (PsyD.) and Master's Degree (M.A.) in Psychology from Phillips Graduate Institute in Los Angeles, California, and completed her award winning Internship and Doctoral Residency requirements at A Better Way Child & Family Services located in Berkeley, California. Prior to completing her graduate studies, Dr. Thompson graduated summa cum laude with a degree in Psychology from the University of California, Santa Cruz. Dr. Thompson is an active member in good standing with the Utah State Board of Psychology, Utah Psychological Association, and the American Psychological Association.

As a parent, Dr. Thompson understands the challenges that caregivers face and has a highly developed sense of empathy for parents working to better the lives of their families.

THURS. JUNE 14, 2019

ADHD: Building New Skills Using Effective Reward Systems

Presented by:

Kat T. Green, PhD, ABPP

I am a board-certified clinical child and adolescent psychologist. Following completion of my PhD in clinical psychology from BYU, I completed a 2-year post-doctoral fellowship at Texas Children's Hospital/Baylor College of Medicine to attain formal specialization in childhood anxiety, ADHD, and behavior concerns. I am currently an assistant clinical professor in psychology at Brigham Young University. I specialize in assessment and treatment of childhood anxiety disorders and disruptive behaviors, including ADHD. I implement research-based interventions to help children and families learn strategies to help kids be more successful in their behavioral, emotional, and social functioning.
